When you hear about "best music apps" you might think it's all about the latest iPhone or Android app that has the coolest look and amazing sound. Well, that's not exactly true. The best music apps will give you great tools no matter what smartphone you're using. You see, there are two types of music apps: paid and free. The paid ones will require an Internet connection, but they also give you more features and more variety than free ones do. So be sure to check out our article on "best music player for Android" if you want the best music app on your smartphone. Both types of music apps are really good, so you won't be disappointed with any. Receiving email when someone buys your song or album If you're an indie musician who is making music in their studio and uploading it online, one of the best features is to be able to receive an email when someone buys your song or your album. This way you'll know how well the album is selling and if people like it or not. One website that will help you do that is Songkick, which enables musicians to send out alerts whenever someone follows them on their website, downloads one of their tracks, buys their music on iTunes or Amazon, etc. How to get a review on a website that doesn't have a music app?

The best way to get a review on any website is to go there and make sure they have the option to add an audio file. Nowadays, there are many websites that decide not to add audio files in order not be overloaded with audio files. To make sure you get your music played, you should use this method: 1) Go to any popular website, download their app and sign in. It's also very ideal if they have Facebook integration in order that when they post your album or song in their Facebook wall, it will appear in the app for your fans to buy. 2) If you already have an account, you must log in. 3) After that, go to the "more" tab and click on "My Content". 4) Scroll down to where it says "Add audio files". 5) Click that option. 6) Choose any audio file format (MP3 or WAV or OGG), name it and click Upload. Voila! Your song will be added in the app.

The initial part of your music career will play vital role in your success.
